For Families and Individuals Affected by Mental Illness

Mental illness can affect persons of any age, race, religion or socioeconomic status. The World Health Organization reports that four of the 10 leading causes of disability in the United States and other developed countries are mental disorders.

One in four adults experiences a mental health disorder in a given year. That means one in 17 adults, or 5 percent, lives with a serious mental illness such as schizophrenia, major depression or bipolar disorder.

Fewer than one-third of adults and one-half of children with a diagnosable mental health disorder receive mental health services in a given year. In the United States, the annual economic, indirect cost of mental illness is estimated at $79 billion. Most of that amount—approximately $63 billion—reflects the loss of productivity as a result of illness.

Mental illness is a medical condition that disrupts a person’s thinking, feeling, mood, ability to relate to others and daily functioning, often resulting in a diminished capacity for coping with the ordinary demands of life. The good news about mental illness is that recovery is possible.

NAMI offers an array of peer education and support programs to help individuals living with mental illness and their families. NAMI offers help and a sense of community for parents, caregivers, veterans, health care providers and persons living with mental illness. NAMI National provides training, curricula, materials and technical assistance to thousands of volunteer teachers, trainers and facilitators who are committed to bringing these programs into their local communities.

Many NAMI affiliates offer an array of courses for family members of people living with mental illness as well as for individuals living with mental illness themselves.

Family-to-Family is a free, 12-week course for families, partners and friends of individuals with serious mental illness taught by more than 3,500 trained NAMI family members and caregivers of individuals living with mental illness. The course dwells on the emotional responses families have to the trauma of mental illness; many family members describe their experience in the program as life-changing.

De Familia a Familia es un curso gratuito de 12 semanas dirigido por miembros capacitados de NAMI que han vivido la experiencia. NAMI Family Support Group Program is a free, monthly meeting of caregivers of individuals with a mental illness where family members can talk frankly about their challenges and help one another through their learned wisdom. In Our Own Voice is a unique public education presentation that offers insight into the hope and recovery possible for people living with mental illness. Trained individuals living with mental illness lead a brief, yet comprehensive and interactive, presentation about mental illness.

The NAMI Provider Education Program offers 30 hours of in-service training to line staff at public mental health agencies, taught by a trained five-member team of family members, individuals living with mental illness and a mental health provider who is either a family member or individual living with mental illness.
