Questions to Ask Your School

TIPS FOR STUDENTS

To become an official NAMI on Campus club, you must receive recognition from your school as a campus club and send documentation of your recognition to NAMI. The recognition process varies from school to school. It is important for you to learn about and understand the process your specific school requires. There are many benefits to becoming a recognized club on your campus. These benefits may include having access to funding, meeting space, leadership trainings, resources and staff available on your campus.

Although NAMI cannot provide definitive guidelines for getting recognized as a club by your school, we have developed a list of questions you should ask your school to ensure you understand the recognition process and have all the information you need from your school to be an effective campus club leader.

Sometimes, the requirements of schools may conflict with the requirements of NAMI. If this happens, let us know so we can help you work it out. Here are some questions to ask:
